NEUFCHATEL.-This little principality, with an area of fourteen German square miles and a population of only sixty thousand souls, is just at preseat the cynosure of European diplomacy. Why it is may be simply told.

Neufchatel, for several centuries an independent State, governed by its own sovereign, was, about ing of the next annual exhibition of the National the ginning of the last century, driven by the extinction of the reigning dynasty to the necessity of selecting a ruler from no less than fifteen pretenders to its vacant throne. It chose the King of Prussia, or the King of Prussia managed to get himself chosea by it, and, at the peace of Utrecht, the European Powers duly recognized his exceedingly doubtful right and title to it. About the beginning of the present century, Prussia, amidst the remarka-ble moves which took place upon the political chess. board at that period, ceded Neufchatel to Napoleon, who in turn transferred it to Marshal Berthier. After the abdication of Napoleon, in 1814, Neufchatel was retroceded to Prussia, and by the treaty of Vieans, in the following year, it was, without any prejudice to the rights of the King of Prussia, made a canton of the Swiss Confederation, in which condition it remained quietly, with the exception of a fruitless insurrection on the occasion of the July revolution of 1830, until 1848, when it formally de- measure, independent of the impetus that might be clared its independence of Prussia, and adopted a given to our agricultural and mechanical interests republican form of government like that of its sister by having the National Association held this year at cantons. The King of Prussia of course stormed and protested, but all to no effect. He invoked the nterference of the parties to the treaty of Vienna to maintain his "rights of sovereignty." but the parties invoked made no response. They had absorbing business at home. He finally succeeded in procuring the empty recognition of his title to Neufchatel by the great Powers in the London conference of 1852. as were the subject slept until the disturbance h gave rise to the existing controversy.

That disturbance, as our readers probably know. was the royalist revolt of last September, in which the partisans of the King of Prussia in the cauton, stimulated doubtless by the absolutist party in Prussia, rose against the authority of the Swiss Republic in the hope of re-establishing the nominal dominion of the King. The hope proved a vain and foolish one, as the revolt was promptly subdued, and its ringleaders, many of whom are connected with influential families in Berlin, Paris, Vienna &c., were arrested and thrown into prison by the Swiss government to await their trial for high treason. The King of Prussia now demands the release of these high-born traitors, and threatens, if his demand is not complied with, to prosecute his ancient rights to Neufchatel at all hazards. And the government of the Republic folds its arms with quiet dignity and tells him in Swiss vernacular to crack away. And this is the Neufchatel question.

It will be seen at a glance that the question presents a clear and direct issue between the rights of nations as expressed in the law of nations and the sitions in the community. rights of governments as defined by the ar bitrary public law of Europe. Neufchatel, having asserted her independence of Prussia and maintained it undisturbed for eight years, is, by the impartial law of nations, strictly as free from all civil connection with that Kingdom as any other canton of Switzerland or any State in Europe. She is a constituent portion of the Swiss Confederacy and nothing more or less. It is a gross and utterly indefensible assumption for the King of Prussia to seek thus to control the administration of justice in a neighboring State, especially as the prisoners in whose behalf he interferes were avowedly engaged in heading a engaged in heading a trous. It is without a shadow of justification But the great powers, whose interposition he has again invoked in his favor, are, as we have seen publicly committed to his claims, and are, therefore bound to assist him in maintaining them, ugh in the face of plain right and intern compel a different conclusion. The good offices of the great powers have been earnestly solicited, and they will certainly be granted, but nobody imagines that they will include either moral or material aid to the King of Prussia in re-conquering his spirited little ex-province. On the contrary, he will be assured, it is believed, that the idea is an extravagant and impracticable one, and advised to formally renounce his sovereignty over Neufchatel, on condition that the leaders of the late revolt shall be set at liberty-a condition which the Swiss Government will probably not hesitate to accept, and thus amicably terminate the question. At all events, the solution, whenever it is effected, promises to be entirely consistent with the sovereign rights of the Confederacy.

Who does not admire the tirmness and dignity and heroic gallantry with which Switzerland bears herself amidst the haughty despots of Europe? We never think of her without experiencing a thrill of lofty gratitude and pride. She is an honor to Christendom, and ought to be its boast.

CA A dense throng assembled at the Synagogue in this city last evening to witness the marriage rites of the Hebrews. The singular tenacity with which this peculiar people, dispersed as they are in every part of the habitable globe, have adhered to the old customs and ceremonies which were in vogue in the days of Abraham, have invested all their solemn services with a strange interest. In the performance of the marriage rite most of the old customs of the earlier ages are kept up in this country, and during the ceremony symbols and tokens calculated to teach and impress upon the mind useful lessons are employed, but the congregation here and in some other portions of the United States, have for some time past omitted a portion of the symbolical services.

The scene presented in the Synagogue last even ing was a mingling of guiety and solemnity. The lovely bride, richly and tastefully attired, with foreead, cheeks, and bosom bathed in blushes, looked as beautiful as Rachael of old and worthy as long a service to be won. The affianced stood beneath a canopy until the marriage ceremony was complete. The pledges, the giving and receiving the ring, the sipping of the wine, are all emblementatical, and added to the solemnity of the service. The address to the happy couple by the Rev. B. H. Gotthelf was truly beautiful and impressive. The practical duties of a wedded pair were portrayed in the language of poetry, and with singular appropriateness. The parties were Mr. N. B. Gosling, of New York, and Miss Frances Bamberger, daughter of Emanuel Bamberger, of this city.

THE NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION. There will be a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Southwestern Agricultural and Mechanical Association on Saturday next, at which we hope all the necessary steps will be taken to procure the hold-Agricultural and Mechanical Association at the fairgrounds near this city. An application was made last year, through the agent of the Association here, Hon. James Guthrie, to have the national exhibition held at this place, and we have been told that it was unsuccessful only because application had been previously made by Philadelphia. We have no doubt. indeed we have reason to believe, that a similar application from the Southwesteru Associatiou, properly sustained by our city and our citizens generally, would be successful at this time.

Aside from the advantages to the Association and to the State at large by holding the national exhibition here, immense benefits will be derived from it by our city. It will bring into the city from 60,000 to 100,000 visitors, and will involve the expenditure in our midst of a very large amount of money. Our hotel-keepers, merchants, manufacturers, and citizens generally should feel a great interest in this our fair-grounds.

An effort is making by the Kentucky Confereuce of the Methodist Episcopal Church South to establish a male college within its bounds to be under the control of the conference. At its last meeting a committee was appointed to take the matter under consideration. This committee held a meeting last month, and adopted a resolution, proposing to the citizens, within the bounds of the conference, that a college shall be located at some eligible point, at which the citizens of the vicinity will secure to the conference twenty thousand dollars or more as a bonus, and that the largest amount so secured, other advantages being equal, shall be entitled to great weight in fixing the location.

The committee authorized Hon. David Thornton of Versailles, to conduct any correspondence in relation to the matter and meet again in July next.

TERRIBLE AFFRAY-Two MEN KILLED .- A dispatch from Monmouth, Warren county, Ill., states that, on Thursday last, two brothers, Henry and John Fleming, were stabbed and killed by William Crozier, in an affray at the Baldwin House in that place. The affair grew out of Crozier's paying his addresses to the sister of the Flemings. For provoking words used by him in a quarrel, both the brothers assailed him, one of them with a pistol, when he stabbed them. It is said to have been a case of self-defense on his part. Crozier gave himself up. All the parties occupied respectable po-

Private letters say the sick and wounded of Walker's men, with the women and children who were in Granada before its destruction, were, to the number of some one hundred and fifty, conveyed to the Island of Ometepe, in the lake. They suffered dreadful privations for some days, and were then surprised and attacked by the natives. Some twenty escaped, but there are fearful apprehensions of the fate of the remainder.

Fortunately, however, there is a logic of try. The paper is now nearly a quarter of a centu-eventa, more rigorous than that of ideas, which will ry old, and has a very extensive circulation.

Normber 7, 3 o'clock P. M.—The Costa Rican army nn der Gen. Cana. numbering about 500, entered San Juan del Sud and took possession of the town. They encamped about four inles out on the mountains, where they erected strong barricades in well selected position.

On the 8th they were reinforced by about three bundred Gustavas like.

On the sth they were reinforced by about three bundred Gnateunalians.

On the 9th, Gen. Hornsby, who was stationed at Virgin Bay, attacked the first barrieade, from which he drove the enemy by a flank movement. He had about two hundred and fifty men with him, and had he followed up his success he could have drove them before him like sheep, but his orders to keep possession of Virgin Bay were imperative, and be had to return te that place fearing an attack in his absence, from other portions of the enemy stationed in that right was about fifty.

The number of the enemy killed and wounded in this fight was about fifty.

On the 12th, Gen. Walker arrived at Virgin Ray from Granada, and, with two hundred and fifty men, drove the enemy from their barricades to San Juan del Sud, from whence they fied to Rivas.

On the morning of the 13th, Gen. Walker returned to Virgin Bay, leaving one hundred and seventy-five men to sarrison San Juan del Sud.

On the 15th, Walker marched from Granada to Massaya, When is the vicinity of Massaya be received intelligence that Herez had left for Rivas at the heat of 700 men. Col. Jaques, at the head of two hundred and fifty men, was immediately dispatched to protect the lathuns, which was doeined to be in dauger. On his arrival at Virgin Bay, he inmediately threw up barricades around the Lown, made from wood cut for the use of the company's steamers.

After two and a balf days righting, Walker abandoned Massaya, las forces not being sufficient to take the place. He retired upon Granada. He left on the 19th with his staff, for Virgin Bay; sending most of the sick, with the women and children, to the Island of Ometepe for safety. Having determined to hurn and destroy Granada, he left the 1st rifles and 2d infantry to accomplish this purpose, and the result had not been heard at Virgin Bay when the steamer left for San Juan del Sud. General Walker was anxiously awasiting recruits to attack Rivas.

On the 23d November, a most brilliant naval engagement took place between the Nicaragian schooner-of-war Granada, of 70 tons, carrying two six pound cannon and twenty-eight men, under C. J. Faysoux, Lt. commanding, and the Costa Rican Drig-of-war 11th April, 214 tons, carrying six nice pound cannon, with one hundred and fourteen men, all well armed with Minie rifles, etc. The engagement lasted over two hours, when a chot struck the rig in the stern, carrying it away and causing ber magazine to explode. Senate.—After debate the bill passed.
Mr. James gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill establishing a navy-yard at Newport, Rhode Island.
Mr. Seward introduced a resolution, which was adopted, requesting the Secretary of the Navy to report respecting his diplomatic relations with Nicaragua, and expressed an opinion that this Government had made a mistake from beginning to end concering the Central American question. Wishing to refresh the recollections of the past, he spoke of the importance, as recited in the President's special message of May last, of having a peaceful passage between the two occans, to be secured by friendly relations with Nicaragua, and dwelt at length on the intestine troubles in Central America to show England's agency in fomenting the existing warfare, she land's agency in fomenting the existing warfare, she having supplied the Costa Ricans with arms to be directed against Nicaragua; whose minister we had

It was important in May last to recognize Walker's government because of the protection necessary to be afforded our citizens in that quarter. The subject is surely not less important now.

House. - English characterised the debate which had been indulged in as a mere rehash of the stump speeches of the Presidential canvas. It was not true, as charged by his colleague, Mr. Cumback, that the Democrats of Indiana, in the late electiou, pandered to the spirit of freesoilism. They fought the battle on the principles enumerated in the Cincinnati convention. No attempt was made by them to dodge the issue. They met it fairly and squarely. His on the principles enumerated in the Cinciunati convention. No attempt was made by them to dodge the issue. They met it fairly and squarely. His colleague was the last man who should have made that charge. Did he not know that in his own ranks there were not only freesoilers but the abolition party proper and that the lowest and most God-forsaking negro advocates, including black Wm. Anderson, who was recently arrested at Louisville as an abolition emissary, was his (Cumback's) ally, and stumped a portion of Indiana, denouncing the Democratic party as pro-slavery?

Mr. Colfax—I heard something about this Anderson, namely: That he was sent to Elkhardt county to make Republican speeches; that the Republican Central Committee repudiated him, and charged that he had been hired by their political opponents for this purpose. Does not my colleague know that this is a matter of public notoriety? [Laughter.]

Mr. English said he had never heard the charge, and did not believe its truth. In the course of his remarks he asked whether there was a Southern man who would not vote for the admission of Kansas into the Union as a free State if this was the undoubted will of its people.

[A voice—not one.]

If the people of the South were willing to act in this spirit toward him, why should he not act in a similar spirit toward them? The Democratic party has been purified, and the Freesoilers lopped off, and any one can see where it has drifted in this hall. They have got rid of sectionaliste and gained national Whiga, and they intend making war on Freesoilism, sectionalism, and Know-Nothingism to the bitter end.

Supreme Court. Case of Dred Scott vs. Sanford, resumed.

George T. Curtis, of Boston, appeared as assistant counsel for plaintief. Hon. Reverdy Johnson made a powerful argument for the defence. He said he should address himself to the question of the constitutionality of the Missouri Compromise. He first, however, attempted to show that the constitution of the United States never deigned to consider black men as citizens. It maintains throughout that man can have property in man, and so sacred is this description of property that the constitution pledges the force of the United States to protect it. The State of Illinois cannot legislate on this or any other subject for the citizens of Missouri.

Respecting the Missouri compromise, he contended that if Congress has power to prohibit slavery, it has, by implication, the power to establish it irrespective of the consent of the people of the territory then or hereafter. At the time the Missouri compromise was adopted it was intended to settle what was then considered a condition of things fatal to the Union unless settled. But what gives power to prohibit except in the legislature. The President has it not. The Judiciary have it not. The people have it not. What power has Congress? It is a body of legislators repesenting the people for all purposes of legislators repesenting the people for all purposes of legislators repesenting the people for all purposes of legislators repesenting the people for sale purposes of legislators repesenting the people for sale purposes of legislators repesenting the people for all purposes of legislato adoption of the Constitution and promises to do so in some of them throughout all time. It may be that the continuance of the prosperous condition of a country like ours depends more or less upon this institution. If the power is granted to Congress it exists in the section of the Constitution authorizing any acquisition of territory by conquest, or by treaty, and afterwards by the power to dispose of or regulate it; it was not intended that the territory thus acquired should be manage in any other way than is expressly provided, nor would it follow that if the existing territorial laws were not a negative of the power of Congress to govern that territory, that the power given would not be subject to certain limitations. If there is such general, sweeping anthority to legislate? Congress, might as well be contented to grasp every legislative power; but the result of such unlimited power would be to bring about a state of things inconsistent with the foundation of our institutions. Chancellor Kent tells us—"If, therefore, the Government of the United States carry into execution a project for colonizing the valley of the Columbia river, it would afford reasons for grave considerations as to the destiny of that country a long time before it is erected into States." And upon that doctrine the laws of Congress, and even upon the judicial decisions of the Supreme Court, the colories will be in a state of as complete subordination and as dependent upon the will of Congress as we would have been if Parliament had suc-Court, the colories will be in a state of as complete subordination and as dependent upon the will of Congress as we would have been if Parliament had succeeded in bringing us to its will. Such was not congenial with republican institutions.

Mr. Johnson made quite a lengthy sheech. He inquired, how came Congress to pass the compromise of 1820? It was nothing but a division for the settlement of a territorial dispute.

The South contented herself, being satisfied if slavery was permitted to go to the line. It was a

The South coutented herself, being satisfied if slavery was permitted to go to the line. It was a compromise of principle necessary for the existence of the Union. It was a compromise of each section rather than each adhering to its idea and periling the existence of the Union on which the world looked with amazement, and was not designed as any authority for the action of the Courts of Justice. Mr. Johnson concluded with an eulogium of the high character of the Court and with a tribute to the Union.

EVENING BULLETIN.

THURSDAY EVENING, DEC. 18, 1856.

THE COURT OF NAPOLEON. By Frank B. Goodrich (Dick Tinto). New York: Derby & Jackson. This is by far the most elegant gift book of the season. In mechanical execution it is splendid, and reflects great credit on the publishers, Derby & Jack-

n. It is printed on beautiful type and upon elegant white royal octavo paper, and bound in real Turkey antique style, splendidly designed.

The illustrations are finely finished, each one colored by hand from original portraits in the galleries at Luxenbourg and Versailles.

The author is a son of "Peter Parley," and has already achieved a literary reputation under the nomme de plume of "Dick Tinto." In his preface to this book he justly remarks that among all the numerous volumes upon Napoleon that have been pullished in this country in none has there been given a general view of his influence upon society, nor a deliueation of mauners and morals under the Empire, tracing their connection with the Court, and noting the effect produced by Napoleou upon the society he created. Mr. Goodrich, with great enterprise and energy, has addressed himself to the task of supplying this omission. Instead of endeavoring to trace the military and political history of the Emperor, he has represented him at home, in the Court, and among his people, and regarded principally "his influence upon morals, manners, religion, art, science, and literature, the fountains of public life and the basis of national character."

For the complete performance of this undertaking the author has collected materials from various sources, many of which are inaccessible to the readers of this country, and has presented them to the public in a graceful, easy-flowing, and very agreeable narrative. He begins with the period of the French Revolution, and introduces the reader to the heroines and heroes of the Reign of Terror, among whom we find Madaine Tallien, Josephine, Lucille Duplessis, Camille Desmoulins, and the beautiful and desperate Charlotte Corday. We are next brought in view of the period of the Directory, in that transition state of French society from the horrors of the revolution to the more instured condition of the French Court under the Empire. This period of national degradation and frightful laxity of morals was succeeded by the chaotic confusion which ushered in the Empire and the stringent etiquette by which was partially concealed a deplorable depravity in the morals of the Imperial Court. In this portion of the work we find sketches of Napoleon's sisters, Eliza, Caroliue (the wife of Murat), and Pauline, the most beautiful princess of Europe, whose caprices occasioned so much aunoyance to the Emperor, of Hortense de Beauharnais, mother of Louis Napoleon, of Mme. Le Normand, the world-renowned fortuneteller, and of Grace Ingersoll, the "belle of New Haven."

Throughout the work, Mr. Goodrich has presented Napoleon and his associates, and those who were connected with the society of the Court of France, from the revolution to the Eurpire, in an entirely new light. This volume will be found full of interesting recitals. It details many incidents which have not been noted elsewhere. Among the splendidly engraved portraits of the celebrated women of the period mentioned are those of Mme. Recamier. "whose beauty threw at her feet every man who had once looked upon her;" Mule. Colombier, Napoleon's first love; Mme. Junot, Duchess D'Abrantes, who refused the hand of Napoleon in marriage; Mme. De Stael, the most celebrated literary woman of her age; Minle. Georges, the renowned tragedienne, and Josephine and Marie Louise, the two Empresses. These portraits, of which there are sixteen, are faithfully copied from originals executed by the best painters of the age in which these personages flourished.

The book is for sale by Morton & Griswold.

HEAVY DAMAGES .- A verdict has been rendered in the United States Circuit Court, at Chicago, against the Galeua and Chicago and Chicago Union Railroad, awarding the plaintiff in the case, John C. Dell $15,000 for injuries at a place where the road crossed the public highway. It was an action on the case of an injury sustained by the plaintiff on account of a collision sustained with the engine of the defendants at the crossing of a public highway. The law of the case rested upon the questions whether the defendants were or were not guilty of negligence, first in not ringing the bell or sounding the whistle, to give warning of their approach to the crossing, and second in not slackening speed before reaching the crossing. The evidence for plaintiff was that neither of these reasonable precautions was taken by the agents of the Company.

ARCTIC EXPLORATIONS. By Elisha Kent Kane, M. D., U. S. N. Philadelphia: Childs & Peterson. We have already noticed at length this splendid contribution to the literature and scientific and geographical knowledge of the age. Dr. Kane has won for himself a world-wide fame, more honorable and more imperishable thau that of a hero in a hundred sanguinary battles. His victories are those of peace and science. His discoveries are full of novelty. He accomplished what for a whole century had in vain been attempted by Arctic explorers. The narrative of his expedition is not only valuable but full of interest. The illustrations are elegant and numerous.

REALITY, or the Millionaire's Daughter. By Mrs. C. Tuthill. New York: C. Scribner. Reality is a prettily told story of crime overtaken and virtue rewarded, with the usual amount of incident. It possesses what few romances have, au undertone of deep morality pointing out the great truth in the pathway of life that good actions never go unrewarded. The plot of the story is well conceived and it will be read with avidity by those who delight in such romances.

LIABILITY OF HOTEL-KEEPRS .- A suit was tried in the Superior Court of N. Y., last week, brought by W. Pervis against Coleman & Stetson, of the Astor House, to recover £400 sterling, which was stolen from his truuk the day of his arrival at that hotel in January last. The trunk was left in the bedroom and the door locked, but, when the plaintiff returned, the door was unlocked and the trunk brokeu open. The defence set up was that a notice was in the room, cautioning the occupants, that the proprietors were not accountable for money unless it was placed in the chest or safe provided by the proprietors for the safe-keeping of all valuables. The jury, under the direction of the court, found a general verdict for the plaintiff, for the full amount, subject to the opinion of the court above on the questions of law.

SIGHT AND HEARING. By J. Henry Clark, M. D. New York: C. Scribner .- In this volume Dr. Clark has presented a practical and popular treatise upon sight and hearing, how they may be preserved and how they may be lost. It is intended especially for the general and not for the scientific reader. The anthor has written particularly for the instruction of mothers and guardians and teachers, in regard to the dangers to which these important organs are exposed in childhood and in youth. He has sought to advise scholars when rest or change of cinployment are required and to point out the meaus which will tend to protect and preserve the sight and hearing to the latest period of life.

EXPLORATION OF THE LA PLATA.—The report on the late exploration and survey of the river La Plata and its tributaries, by Leint. Page, commander of the United States steamer Water-Witch, has been published. It is an ir esting paper:

der of the United States steamer Water-Witch, has been published. It is an ir sting paper:

The principal affluents of the La Plata, the Parana and Uruguay, and their tributaries were the field of Ll. Page's operations. He ascended the Parana about 500 miles from Buenos Ayres, to its confluence with the Paraguay, and from this point the Paraguay was further ascended about 500 miles, to the Brazilian military post of Corumba, beyond which the advance of the Water-Witch was prohibited. The provinces bordering on the Parana are Entre Rios and Comentes on the left, and Santa Fe on the right—the latter chiefly inhabited by various tribes of Indians. This extent of country embraces some 200,000 square miles, and is watered by navigable rivers and well studded with timber. The fertility of the soil is unsurpassed. It is sparsely populated. The Parana was ascended by the Water-Witch when at its lowest stage, but no difficulty was experienced in its navigation. The average width of the Paraguay is from one-cighth to three-quarters of a mile. Both these rivers are admirably adapted to steam usvigation. There are no obstructions in the shape of shoals or rocks, while the wood from the banks of the Paraguay was ascentained to be equal in the production of steam to the best anthracite coal. The region bordering the Paraguay is very lithily settled, there being a space of 250 miles where there is not a single civilized labitation. Lieut, Page is of opinion that the Water-Witch could have ascended this river 300 miles further—or 1,200 miles in all—to Cabaya, the capital of the Brazilian State of Matto Grasso, had not the government interdicted the attempt. Paraguay has immense herds of cattle, while her iron and other names and agricultural resources are of great value.

The Bahia Negra, a tributary of the Paraguay, about histy-is-giat miles helow Corumba, was next explored, but, after ascending thirly-six miles, the river was found to be closed by rapids. The next exploration was that of the river Salado. This stream was asc

Our government is rendering an important service to the commerce of the country by sending out such expeditions as that in which Lieut. Page has been employed. Important additions are made to our knowledge of the geography, productions, resources, and character of the people of hitherto little known regions. By this means new avenues of trade are opened, and the enterprise of our people furnished with new fields for its exercise. In this way both parties with new fields for its exercise. In this way both parties are benefited. The one is brought into contact with the civilizing and progressive influences of commercial intercourse, and new sources of enjoyment opened to them, while the other reaps new harvests of wealth. This exploration of the La Plata and its tributaries is a good exemplification of that spirit of enterprise which marks the American character. If ad not our Government interested itself in the mavigation of those great water-courses, they would probably have remained untraversed by foreign vessels for long years to come—perhaps until the next century, If left to the slow development of the South American Governments. As it now, they may in a few years become important avenues of commerce, and the vast resources of the regions which they traverse will pour their treasures in to the lap of the world, and contribute to the welfare and progress of mankind.

SALT ON THE KANAWHA RIVER .- One of the editors of the Charlotteville (Va.,) Republican has recently made a trip among the Kanawha salt wells and coal mines and obtained the following facts concerning them:

We have made some inquiries into the statistics of the salt and coal business of Kanawha and will give our readers a mere outline of the facts. There are in the Kanawha Yalley, commencing about five miles above Charleston and extending some twenty miles up the river, some eighty or a bundred salt wells. The quantity of salt annually made is about two millions and a quarter of bushels. The salt business is and has been for some years under the control of a joint stock company. This company, for the purpose of limiting the supply of salt and in order to prevent ruinous competition in the sales of salt, have rented many wells which they throw idle, and have contracted to purchase the salt made by individual enterprise at a fixed price, 16 cente a hushel. The same company is generally the purchaser of all salt manufactured near Pomeroy, Ohio. For all purposes connected with the curing of bason and beef, the Kanawha is worth wavity more than any salt in our markets. The salt of the New York wells is a strong competitor in the Weslern markets. Vast quantities of money have been made in the business in this county; but, owing to the great fluctuations of the market, the hazards of navigation, and the cost of operation, very few have left the business in as prospersous condition as they entered.

The coal wealth of Kanawha is beyond all computation. In extent of mines, in variety of kinds, and in favorable locations for mining and transportation, there are no coal mines in the Union equal to them. The coal fields are principally owned by wealthy New York and English companies who are willing to expend vast sums of money in developing their resources. The best specimens of Cannel and bituminous coal are to be found upon Coal and Elkrivera. Knowing the deep interest which these coal companies who are willing to expend vast sums of money in developing their resources. The best specimens of Cannel and bituminous coal are to be found upon Coal and Elkrivera.

has bushel. At Stockton's mines of Cannel coal—a Welsh corruption of candle, so called because a fire made of this coal is so bright as to do away with the necessity for candles—about 20 miles above Charleston, operations have been commenced for the crection of a large factory for the conversion of this coal into oil and the residuum into candles. A ton of coal will make 40 gallons of oil at a cost of 16 cents the gallon. The residumm, after making the oil, is made into a beautiful candle of the color of clear wax. The oil thus made is very far superior in brilliancy and other qualities to any material ever yet used for lights.

A Veteran Patriot.—The Electoral College of Vermont selected as their messenger to Washington the venerable Hon. William C. Bradley, one of their number. One who was present at the meeting says that the old gentlemen cast his vote for Fremont with a solemnity becoming the last public act of one's earthly being. He has been one of Vermont's strongest men, was a Representative in Congress from 1813 to 1816, and want from 1823 to 1827.

FACILITIES FOR COMMITTING CRIME.—The New York Police Gazette, speaking of the late arrest of burglars in that city, says:

burglars in that city, says:

The facilities which the thieves of New York have for committing crimes are almost beyond belief. Their organization is complete. In searching Moore's house after his scape, the police discovered a number of confidential letters which he had received from all parts of the country. These letters it would be highly injudicions to publish, as they implicate respectable merchants out West and parties in this city who are supposed to be beyond suspicion. These letters showed the facility afforded thieves in disposing of their property. There were also letters from the owner of a noted "fence" in Tenth street.

In perusing these letters carefully, it was also discovered that this gang with which Moore was connected had nechanics and laborers in their employ, who furnished them with a full and accurate description of the housesthey were at work upon. There were also found a number of disgraus of stores and dwellings, of an innumerable number of houses in this city, how the various apartments were laid out, and, if a store, where the safe or silks were deposited; if a dwelling house, where the money or silver plate was located. Who furnished the thieves with these diagrams well known to the lunglars as the owners themselves. Even the very focks on the doors are known, yet no impression has been, made with wax. Who gives information of this character? New York is at the mercy of thieves; no police, however effective, can afford adequate protection.

NEGRO INSURRECTION IN GREEN COUNTY CONTRADICTED.

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal: GREENSBURG, KY., Dec. 15, 1856. GENTLEMEN: The report has gone abroad, and I see it noticed in some of the country papers, that an insurrection of the slaves in this county was expected or feared. Such is not the fact. Steps have been taken by our citizens to investigate the mat-ter, and all are satisfied that no such thing has been contemplated by the shaves here.

We fear no danger as long as our excellent police judge continues so prompt and efficient in the discharge of his official duties. Yours,

SKETCH OF THE HEAVENS AT NIGHT. - We are at this time favored with a couple of evening are at this time favored with a couple of evening stars—Jupiter and Venns; indeed a third may be added, namely, Mars. Nor is it the first time, ac-cording to heathen mythology, that those ancient divinities, now called planets, have spent the even-ing together. Venus appears at present only a brief time after the setting of the sun. Her visit, howtime after the setting of the sun. Her visit, however, will be gradually prelonged to a later hour. But Jupiter will shine for some weeks the greater part of the night, going to bed at the same time with the gambler, dehauchee, and street picaroou; Mars will remain somewhat longer.

White on the subject of the heavens, we may as well mention that they contain at no other time.

well mention that they contain at no other time splendors equal to those which now every evening ilsplendors equal to those which now every evening in-luminate the sky, particularly its eastern portion. More fixed stars of the first magnitude are congre-gated along a bright belt from Capella in the North to Sirius, the most magnificent of all in the North to Sirius, the most magnificent of all in the South, than any other equal space can boast. First in the splendid procession advance the Pleiades, then follow close the Hyades. Immediately, Orion bursts upon the sight, flanked by Capella in the Wagoner and the Twins on the left, and the lightning-flashing Sirius low down in the southern horizon, Procyon between. Beside these, lights of less note supply the intervals along the brilliant fields, and enhance the sublimity of these burning orbs, while Jupiter is glowing with his severely white and enhance the sublimity of these burning oros, while Jupiter is glowing with his severely while beams in the western sky, and Fomelhaut shining dully down south. By this time Venus, with her yellow ray, has retired to repose, and left her old paramour, red-handed Mars, to spend the rest of the night in company with other celestial beauties.

But all the glories of the heavens are not monopo-lized by the constellatious in the east. Atair, Vega, the Swan, and the Great Bear still keep their lamps blazing in the west, though all, excepting the last, with fading lustre. The Great Bear, perhaps the most remarkable of the constellations, rises but never sets, shining uninterruptedly every night in the year as he is pursued forever round the pole by the dogs of Bootes.—Newark Adv., Dec. 2.

Gice your Child a Paper.—A child beginning to read becomes delighted with a newspaper, because he reads the names of things which are familiar, and will make progress accordingly. A newspaper in one year is worth a quarter's schooling to a child, and every father must consider that substantial information is connected with advancement. The mother of a family being one of the heads, and having a more immediate charge of children, should herself be instructed. A mind is thus fortified against the ills of life, and is braced for an emergency. Children, amused by reading or study, are, of cy. Children, animeted by leading of study, are, course, more considerate, and most easily governed. How many parents who have not spent twenty dollars for books for their families, would have given hundreds to reclaim a son or daughter, who have ignorantly or thoughtlessly fallen into error.

Chloroform vs. Strychnine .- We are informed that econogram vs. Strictume.—we are informed that a young man in Georgetown, Mass., bought, last week, of an apothecary, four grains of strychnine, all of which he says he took. He was saved from instant death by having just previously eaten a hearty dinner. Dr. Moody saw the patient four hours subsequently, and being much to stop the spasms by the ordinary remedies, at the lapse of the property of chloryform. twelve hours, ordered the inhalation of chloroform, an ounce and a half of which proved effectual, and the patient has recovered.

THIRTY-FOURTH CONGRESS—SECOND SESSION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.

House,—Twenty thousand copies of the President's message and accompanying documents were ordered to be printed. The consideration of the President's message was resumed. Gen. Quituan believed every word of the President on the slavery question well timed and true, and developments in the House show that the objects of the Republican party were such as the Executive had attributed to their leading men; that organization had declared their purpose to destroy that institution which is intertwined with the Southern States. Speaking on the subject of the Southern States. Speaking on the subject of the Central American question, he said he was opposed as an American to bowing and yielding to England or France. This has been the rock on which we have split.

We want no treaty with any foreign nation relative to our duty on this continent, and should not there-fore call on any Enropean power to come across the ocean to help regulate our Central American affairs. WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.

The case of Dred Scott vs Sandford was resumed.
Mr. Johnson presented precedents in support of his views on the question of citizenship of the negro.
Mr. Blair said his colleague Mr. Curtis proposed to argue merely the constitutionality of the Missouri compromise.
Mr. Blair then proceeded with his argument in support of the jurisdiction of the court, and the claim of his client to citizenship mainly on same grounds as adduced in his remarks of Monday last. He instanced various anthorities in support of his propositions and defended at length the constitutionality of the Missouri compromise.

A call has been issued for a Nicaraguan sympathy meeting at the Tabernacle on Saturday evening. The names of Gov. Price of New Jersey, ex-Gov. Smith of Virginia, Brown of Mississippi, Jones of Tennessee, and Senators Cass, Douglas, Mason, etc., are announced as speakers. W. & H. Burkhardt have been appointed agents in account of the great ship Pennsylvania:

The Ship-of-the-Link Pennsylvania, now lying at Norfolk, and used as a receiving vessel, was a wonder of naval architecture when she was launched at our Navy Yard in 1837. Our many triumphs in the building of steam vessels since that period have caused us to lose sight of a spacious craft, then the pride of our marine. The Pennsylvania never had an opportunity of displaying her qualities in sailing or in delivering a broadside into an enemy. The superiority of steam vessels will not admit of a doubt; but there is no safficient reason for allowing such a monarch of the seas to rot at Norfolk, when it might be fitted up to add greatly to the strength of a mavy never very powerful; onsidering the extent of our coast and our commercial marine. We are glad to learn that there is some probability that the Navy Department will soon take proper action in the matter. It is propoded to cut off the apper deck of the ship, lengthen her, and convert her into a propeller. The capacity of the Pennsylvania at present may be judged from the statement that she can carry six months' provisions and water for twelve hundred men, and a heavier armament than any vessel in the service. HALIFAX, Dec. 18. The steamer America, now over due from Liver-pool, has not yet been signalled below.

The Poble Trade for the Week. — At the close last evening there was an active demand for hogs at $6.50(e6.60.). The hog product was likewise in active demand, and holders put up prices of mess pork, bulk pork, and box means materially. There were unmerous buyers at $6.50 for mess pork, $6.60(2)% for holk shoulders and sides, but no sellers. There was recatankiety to buy for future delivery but not many sellers. The "short crop" idea has taken full be quite manifest the present week, we have no doubt. Our advices from various leading points ludicate a zerious failing off in the business, as compared with last year, as regards numbers; there will also be a deficiency in weight, but not to exceed, we think, two per cent. One very marked came of this falling off, however, is the great increase in the number of hogs shipped to the East, by railway, this season over last; this increase, as far as our advices, being fully uffy per cent. This we consider a very important matter, calling for the especial attention of dealers. The receipts at this place the past week, as will be seen, have been considerably larger than those of the previous week, and the indicationare that they will continue heavy for a week or two longer, as the prices now current in this market would render importations from Illinois and even lowa, profitable; and, besides, the railway facilities for bringing hogs from those sections are good, because the cars running East generally run compty. Our slaughterers are now paying 50(650) p head premium, making the prices netted by drovers for hogs equal to about $6.75(66.70 g) cvt net.
